THE REQUIREMENT

The company needed a project management system for its own work. A fixed-price build was estimated at five to six months, and the company wanted a more flexible way to engage.

WHAT WE BUILT

We worked as the company's development team on a monthly retainer. The retainer covered a minimum of 65 developer hours a month, with extra hours billed as used and invoiced at month end.

THE OUTCOME

The company had its project management system developed in steps, paying for the hours used each month.
